RESTOR OF RIS LITE,

Benjamin Stoddert Ewell was born in Georgetown, b. C., on June 10, 1810. His father was Dr. Tromas Ewell, of the United States Navy, and his mother was Elizabeth Stoddert, who was the daugneter of Benjamin Stoddert, the first Secretary of the Navy of the United States, under the first Adams. He was appointed to the United States Military Academy at West Point from Virginia in 1828, and a classmate of Gen. R. E. Lee, and graduated third in his class in 1824. He was made second Beutenant of the Fourth United States Artillery July 1, 1832. Assistant Professor of Mathematics, West Point Military Academy, 1832-35; Assistant-Professor of Mathematics, West Point Military Academy, 1832-35; Assistant-Professor of Natural and Experimental Philosophy, 1832-35; resigned from the United States army in 1830, was one of the principal Assistant Engineers of the Baltimore and Susquehanna railroad; Professor of Mathematics in Hampdon-Sidney SKETCH OF HIS LITE, evolutionary War. His brother, Lieut.-General R. S. Ewell,

BEAUBEGARD'S INSTRUCTOR.

While a teacher at west Point he in-structed Beauregard and many others who became distinguished soldiers on both sides in the late war. Colonel Ewell rendered valuable assistance to General martuner in the location of the defences on the Peninsula prior to the advance of General McClelland in 1862 and his in-movedee of the country, united with his military training and engineer-with his military training and engineering skill, did a good part.

While Colonel Ewell served honorably and with credit as a soldier, he was opposed to secession and the rupture of the Union, and only went into the war to defend his State and people. It is not, however, as a soldier or man of war in which the memory or fame of Colonel Ewell will rest. He was essentially a man of peace, for no one so fully loved his fellow-man, no matter how humble, as he did. He never lost an opportunity to do good to others whenever he could, and often at his own personal loss. He was essentially the friend of the poor. He was devoted to William and Mary College—indeed, he and it are so indissolubly connected that no one who knew both can think of them apart.

Ris Love Of WILLIAM AND MARY HIS LOVE OF WILLIAM AND MARY

He will be buried in the college grounds, and every living alumnus of William and Mary should subscribe to placing an appropriate memorial over his grave. They will not have to be urged to do so, for every boy who ever came to old William and Mary loved "Old Buck," and will be only too glad to honor his memory. He was a kind friend to all students, entered freely into their joys and sorrows, and elevated them in their own minds by the way he appealed to their manhood and better nature. In nothing he ever did was there an element of setfishness, and on his death-bed his thoughts and utterances to the last were of others, not of himself.

MINE OF INFORMATION.

MINE OF INFORMATION.

He was a perfect mine of information on all subjects, full of anecdotes and reminiscences of all sorts. No one could listen to his conversation without being entertained and instructed. He was always fresh in his feelings, never imposed his age upon others, and was as much a companion of the young as of those of more mature age. This was one of the most charming of his characteristics.

He had ben a member of the Protestant Enteronal church for years, in the communion of which he died.

The little boy was the son of the woman by a former husband, and Diest threatened to kill nim. He had some words with his wife about the boy which resulted in his brutal beating of the woman and placing her on the track to be run over by a train. She managed to drag herself off the track just before the approach of a freight train. She was discovered by the trainmen and picked up in an unconscious condition. She was badly bruised, and her back was injured by being thrown on the iron rails.

Hoverter's must of Morgan's fly, and the failure of the home team to hit the ball when hits were needed. The fielding of both sides was good, that of Roasoke being brilliant at times. Cavanaugh put up a great game at third and robbed the visitors of two apparently safe hits. He had nine chances and accepted them all without an error. Besides this, he made two hits. Smith also made several difficult catches in centre. Richmond took the lead in the first inning. Kain and McGann made singles and Tate was struck by a pitched ball, filling the bases. Foster and Hodge were retired on flys to Cavanaugh and McHoverter. Morgan was given his base on balls, forcing in Kain, and McGann and Tate scored on West's single. Napier got his base on balls, but Black struck out. Asin led off with a hit in the second and scored on a wild pitch.

In the sixth Morgan tailled on a base on balls, West's cacifide, a wild pitch, and Napier's rirgle. Richmond's last two runs were made in the seventh. After McGann had fooled out to Dariel, Tate and Fester hit safely, Tate would have been retired at second had not Demosa dropped the ball thrown to him by Smith. Both men advanced a base on Hodge's base on balls, and scered when McHoverter dropped Morgan's fly.

Reanoke did not make a run until the sixth.

McHoverter was retired, McGann to Tate. Then Creckett got in a single and Smith a two-basger. Both men scored on errors by Napier and Foster. In the seventh McCoy's sirgle and Hodge's fumble of Dariel's grounder gave Roanoke another run. Frech, in the ninth, led off with a two-targer, and scered the only earned run of the game on a similar hit by McHoverter. Crockett sacrificed the latter to third, where he was left, Smith ending the inning by an easy out from McGann to Tate.

THE GREAT RACE TO.DAY List of the Starters and Their Elders

Ramapo a Hot Favorite. NEW YORK, June 20.-The suburban handicap, in which a more widespread interest is taken than any decided on interest is taken than any decided on the American turf, will be run at Shepshead Bay to-moriow. Great proparations have been made for the event, and if the weather should be fair, 20,000 to 40,000 persons will witness the race. It is cloudy to-night, and the indications are that rain will fall before mornins. If the rainfall is light it will only nave the effect of laying the dust on the track, which is in superb condition, and will make it all the faster. Weather Prophet Dunn says the indications for to-morrow afternoon are for fair weather, and this will bring out a big crowd. The official list of starters for the great race, with their jockeys so far as known.

The official list of starters for the great race, with their jockeys so far as known, and their weights, sent out by the Coney Island Jockey Club to-night, is as follows:

A possible starter is St. Michael, with A possible starter is St. Michael, with Bergen up. In the event of St. Michael not starting Bergen will probably ride Fickpocket. Chitord's allment, which was announced yesterday, and which renders it improba-ble that he will start in the handicap, was ble that he will start in the handicap, was a keen disappointment to the trufmen, as it was believed he would be an important factor in the race. His absence has made the taient very sweet on the chances of Ramapo, from Gideon and Daly's stable, and he will probably go to the post a hot favorite. Sir Walter, that game little son of Midlothian, will be next in demand in the betting, closely pressed by Henry of Navarre, Banquet, Don Alonzo, Sport, Pickpocket and King Lee will not want for backing, while Comanche, Stowaway and Charade will be the outsiders. All the horses carded to start are trained to the hour, and an exciting contest is looked for.

An all-around wearer.

A man came in yesterday and said he wanted a suit of something he could put on when he got up in the morning and wear it until he went to bed-and be properly and comfortably attired. He bought a True Blue Serge. Could have had a Black if he'd preferred.

We hinted that a little variety wouldn't hurt-and he took along a couple of pairs of White Duck Pantsfor now and then wear,

That Blue Serge will be just as blue when the season's over as it is now.

$10 and up for the Serges. Long Single and Double-Breasted Sacks and Regent Cutaways. Lined—half lined—and unlined.
$1 and up for the Duck Pants—and they hang as well as $10 Worsteds could.

We can show you a string of novelties in the wafer weights that'll "make your eyes stick out."

This is Bad,

Editor Times: Citizens living on Broad street west of Lombardy have awaited patiently for some show of improvement since the excavators finished their work of cutting down Broad street in the neighborhood of the Lee monument. The slightest rain causes an impassible barrier to good traveling. The worst feature, however, is the formation of rivers, caused by the banking up of earth in the fields, which is certainly a chance for typhoid fever. Now, if this missance was in close proximity to some of our big city magnates the remedy would be very speedy. The only resource left is an appeal to The Times to help us. Will you give this a notice and do what you can to further our efforts to have the water now standing in the fields drained of.
